Héðinsfjarðargöng

A photograph taken from inside a tunnel, looking out through a large circular opening. The entire image has a strong blue color cast. The road is paved and has white lane markings. On the left side of the road, there are several traffic signs, including a circular sign with a white background and a black border. On the right side, there is a triangular warning sign. The road curves to the right and leads towards a snowy, mountainous landscape. In the distance, a red light is visible on the road. The tunnel walls are made of concrete and have some structural elements visible.
